Call to Worship		Jim Riemann
We are your people, God. Gathered in this space, gathered around our computers and TVs, praising your name and worshipping in Spirit and Truth. What we represent, however, are generations who have come before us. Parents and Grandparents, distant relatives we don't even know of, we are the culmination of ages of the faithful—and the not-as-faithful, who bring us to right here and right now. As we worship today, may we be mindful of what has been passed down to us and what we will be passing on. Let us worship together.
